Sommerhaus am See Dec 21 2021 "Ein leidenschaftliches Erinnerungsbuch über Deutschland." Neil MacGregor In den 1920er-Jahren war das Holzhaus am idyllischen See von Groß Glienicke das Ferienparadies für die jüdische Familie Alexander gewesen. Für Elsie Alexander, die Großmutter von Thomas Harding, blieb es trotz Verfolgung und Vertreibung durch die Nazis ein Ort für die Seele. Wie durch ein Wunder steht das Haus noch immer, über Jahrzehnte Zufluchtsort für fünf Familien, deren Schicksale das deutsche 20. Jahrhundert spiegeln. Nach Kriegsende lag es auf DDR-Gebiet. Die Mauer wurde durch den Garten gebaut, am Seeufer entlang. Zuletzt stand es leer, verfiel und sollte abgerissen werden. Doch Thomas Harding und seine Mitstreiter vor Ort sorgten dafür, dass dies nicht geschah. Er beschloss, dem Haus seine Geschichte wiederzugeben.

Das Haus in Cold Hill Aug 17 2021 Spannend und herrlich schaurig: Englands Bestsellerautor Peter James hat eine hervorragende, gruselige Geistergeschichte geschrieben. Für Ollie und Caro Harcourt und ihre Tochter Jade ist es ein wirkliches Abenteuer: Ihr neues Zuhause ist ein riesiger, verfallener alter Kasten auf dem Land. Genau das Richtige, um es von Grund auf zu sanieren, eine veritable Geldanlage. Doch die Harcourts stellen schnell fest: Sie sind nicht allein. Ungewöhnliche Dinge gehen hier vor sich, eine gespenstische Frau in Grau wandelt durch die Flure. Als die verängstigten Harcourts schließlich die dunkle Geschichte von Cold Hill erfahren, steht ihr Leben auf dem Spiel.

Fair and Unfair Trials in the British Isles, 1800–1940 Nov 07 2020 Adopting a microhistory approach, Fair and Unfair Trials in the British Isles, 1800–1940 provides an in-depth examination of the evolution of the modern justice system. Drawing upon criminal cases and trials from England, Scotland, and Ireland, the book examines the errors, procedural systems, and the ways in which adverse influences of social and cultural forces impacted upon individual instances of justice. The book investigates several case studies of both justice and injustice which prompted the development of forensic toxicology, the implementation of state propaganda and an increased interest in press sensationalism. One such case study considers the trial of William Sheen, who was prosecuted and later acquitted of the murder of his infant child at the Old Baily in 1827, an extraordinary miscarriage of justice that prompted outrage amongst the general public. Other case studies include trials for treason, theft, obscenity and blasphemy. Nash and Kilday root each of these cases within their relevant historical, cultural, and political contexts, highlighting changing attitudes to popular culture, public criticism, protest and activism as significant factors in the transformation of the criminal trial and the British judicial system as a whole. Drawing upon a wealth of primary sources, including legal records, newspaper articles and photographs, this book provides a unique insight into the evolution of modern criminal justice in Britain.

Das Haus der zwanzigtausend Bücher Apr 24 2022 Jetzt auch als Taschenbuch! Ein Haus voller Bücher, in dem Abend für Abend eine illustre Gästeschar lebhaft diskutierte. Als Kind kam Sasha Abramsky dies ganz selbstverständlich vor. Erst viel später wurde ihm bewusst, welcher Schatz sich hinter der unauffälligen Fassade dieses Londoner Reihenhauses verbarg: Sein Großvater Chimen, der 2010 hochbetagt starb, hatte im Laufe seines Lebens geschätzte zwanzigtausend Bücher zusammengetragen und eine der bedeutendsten Privatsammlungen Englands geschaffen – zugleich ein Spiegel der großen gesellschaftspolitischen Debatten des 20. Jahrhunderts. Voller Zärtlichkeit erinnert sich Abramsky an seinen Großvater und dessen unvergleichliche Sammlung – ein einzigartiges Vermächtnis. Die Taschenbuchausgabe wurde um das Vorwort von Sasha Abramsky erweitert, der im September 2016 erfuhr, dass seine Großeltern vom britischen Inlandsgeheimdienst überwacht wurden. ORF-Bestenliste Dezember 2015. Mit einem Nachwort von Philipp Blom und einem farbigen Bildteil.

The House of Loose Screw Heads Aug 29 2022 After barely surviving a bad case of medical malpractice, Angela suffers under posttraumatic stress disorder, and is sent to a rehabilitation clinic for psychosomatic illnesses by her health insurer. Against her best judgment and carrying a multitude of preconceived notions about such clinics, Angela arrives and immediately finds her negative prejudices more than confirmed – at least in some ways. After a while, though, she discovers that the doctors and therapists can provide her with valuable assistance with her problems, and she concludes her stay on a note of gratitude for what she learned and experienced. The author, Bärbel Kiy, treats the subject of her stay in “The House of Loose Screw Heads or The Lunatic Castle with a Lakeside View with great humor, a healthy dose of hyperbole and just a pinch of scathing sarcasm, but in the final analysis appeals to all potential patients to dive head first into the adventure of a rehabilitation clinic.

Lady of the House Jan 22 2022 This book tells the true stories of three gentle women who were born, raised, lived and died within the world of England's Country Houses. This is not the story of 'seen and not heard' women, these are incredible women who endured tremendous tragedy and worked alongside their husbands to create a legacy that we are still benefitting from today. Harriet Leveson-Gower, Countess Granville was the second born child of the infamous Georgiana, Duchess of Devonshire who married her aunt's lover, raised his illegitimate children and reigned supreme as Ambassadors over the Parisian elite. Lady Mary Isham lived at Lamport Hall in Northamptonshire with her family where, despite great tragedy, she was responsible for developing a house and estate whilst her husband remained 'the silent Baronet'. Elizabeth Manners, Duchess of Rutland hailed from Castle Howard and used her upbringing to design and build a Castle and gardens at Belvoir suitable for a Duke and Duchess that inspired a generation of country house interiors. These women were expected simply to produce children, to be active members of society, to give handsomely to charity and to look the part. What these three remarkable women did instead is develop vast estates, oversee architectural changes, succeed in business, take a keen role in politics as well as successfully managing all the expectations of an aristocratic lady.

The House of Fulfilment Mar 24 2022 Harriet Blair was seventeen when she went with her father and mother and her brother Austen to New Orleans, to the marriage of an older brother, Alexander, the father's business representative at that place. It was characteristic of the Blairs that they declined the hospitality of the bride's family, and from the hotel attended, punctiliously and formally, the occasions for which they had come. It takes ease to accept hospitality. Alexander Blair, the father, banker and capitalist, of Vermont stock, now the richest man in Louisville, was of a stern ruggedness unsoftened by a long and successful career in the South, while his wife, the daughter of a Scotch schoolmaster settled in Pennsylvania, was the possessor of a thrifty closeness and strong, practical sense. Alexander, their oldest son, a man of thirty, to whose wedding they had come, was what was natural to expect, a literal, shrewd man, with a strong sense of duty as he saw it. His long, clean-shaven upper lip, above a beard, looked slightly grim, and his straight-gazing, blue-gray eyes were stern. The second son, Austen, was clean-featured, handsome and blond, but he was also, by report, the shrewd and promising son of his father, even as his brother was reported before him. Harriet, the daughter, was a silent, cold-looking girl, who wrapped herself in reserve as a cover for self-consciousness but, observing closely, thought to her own conclusions. She had a disillusioning way of bearing facts in these communings, which showed life to her very honestly but without romance or glamor.

House of Fiction Jun 14 2021 From the gothic fantasies of Walpole's Otranto to post-modern takes on the country house by Kazuo Ishiguro and Ian McEwan, Phyllis Richardson guides us on a tour through buildings real and imagined to examine how authors' personal experiences helped to shape the homes that have become icons of English literature. We encounter Jane Austen drinking 'too much wine' in the lavish ballroom of a Hampshire manor, discover how Virginia Woolf's love of Talland House at St Ives is palpable in To the Lighthouse, and find Evelyn Waugh remembering Madresfield Court as he plots Charles Ryder's return to Brideshead. Drawing on historical sources, biographies, letters, diaries and the novels themselves, House of Fiction opens the doors to these celebrated houses, while offering candid glimpses of the writers who brought them to life.

Living in the House of God Nov 19 2021 "How should we live in this house of God? We know that the way a building is shaped also helps in determining the way those within it live and relate. We are indeed formed by what we form. Qualities such as integrity, hospitality, humanity and beauty in a place will enable its dwellers to live lives in which such qualities are evident. The way we understand who we are and how we live will be reflected in our places and vice versa. Our places become bearers of meaning and memory." -From Chapter 1 Living in the House of God, Margaret Malone draws on her study of and research on the Rule of Saint Benedict to show the ways in which this ancient rule can illuminate modern life. The broad gamut of topics this book examines—from Benedictine life as sacrament to Augustine's influence on Benedict to obedience and the art of listening, among others—is itself a witness to the generous flexibility of the Rule, as Benedict proposes a way of life that truly corresponds to the deepest needs of the whole of human nature.
